SOCIETY

The Season—spell it with a capital and treat its importance with proper respect—the Society article, the great society article, arrives with December, and December arrives on Tuesday, the day before to-morrow. Thanksgiving is as balmy as spring, but somehow December brings with it a cold, crisp, sharpness and pungency. At once the resinous fragrance of the pine and the bitter-sweet pungency of the cedar that in from the Decembers of other days and by-gone years. Memory goes back to the weaving of evergreen wreaths brightened with the scarlet gleam of holly berries, and sees again the tying of the mistletoe into place where the unwary maiden, standing beneath it, is sure to pay the forfeit. Looking backward over the centuries, one fails to find the origin of the idea which makes December the holiest month of the year and opens the door for the Season—adorned with a capital—to present itself.

The Season means many things to many people. To the society leader it means the nice balancing of her engagement book, to make her affairs fit in comfortably and with due sense of adjustment. It also means planning for the entertainments she is to give, the invention of clever and original novelties in decoration, in menus, in ways of keeping her guests amused and complacent, and in banishing every suspicion of distress and boredom from the atmosphere. For the mother who has a daughter to introduce to society, the advent of the Season means the superintending of pretty gowns of all kinds for the young girl, who is expected to be ready at a moment's call for many emergencies. It means for both the formal audience, to which older people are bidden that they may give a dance in honor of Miss Susy McGuire, a niece of Mrs. Williams and a debutante of this season.

Miss McGuire will be at home Monday afternoon in compliment to Miss Elizabeth Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Brown, of Bedford county.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hughes Lindsey, of No. 600 West Franklin Street, will give a cotillion Wednesday evening, December 9th, at the Jefferson Hotel, when Miss Eleanor Hazard Lindsey, their debutante daughter, will be introduced to society.

Miss Fanny Miller will entertain a number of her friends among the smart society of Richmond on December 1st and 3d, in the home of her mother, Mrs. J. Mason Miller, of No. 412 West Franklin Street.

Mr. Henry L. Cabell, of No. 311 West Franklin Street, will be the host of a dinner-dance on the evening of December 11th, in honor of Miss Mary Crump, the debutante daughter of Judge and Mrs. Beverly T. Crump.

Mrs. Johnston Returned.

Miss Mary Johnston, who has been for some time at the Plaza Hotel, New York, during the rehearsals of her drama, "The Goddess of Reason," has returned to her home in this city, at No. 119 East Franklin Street.

Miss Johnston will remain here until about December 16th, when she will again leave for the North and witness the first night's production during the holiday season of her play, with Miss Julia Marlowe in the title role as Yvette, a young Breton peasant girl. Both Miss Johnston and Miss Marlowe feel thoroughly satisfied with the progress of the play and the beauty and strength of the different scenes, the opening scene at the Chateau de Morvan being particularly attractive.

The Season, therefore, has its use in the great social evolution of the world, as well as the butterflies of fashion. For what else is woman given a leaning toward and a capacity for the bright and beautiful and leisurely side of life? The woman whose facile play of wit enables her to deftly toss the ball of conversation, either at a dinner or a reception, whose readiness in repartee being taken at disadvantage, is an agreeable and admirable revelation to the woman whose absorption in work has prevented her from cultivating the minor graces for which another may be conspicuous.

The Season, indeed, has interest for all women—sober, hard-working women, and, however lightly its name may be taken, every woman, gentle and simple, young and old, woman of fashion or working woman, each knows away down in her heart that it has a meaning and a fascination peculiarly and entirely its own.

Eloise and Miss Elizabeth, accompanied by their cousin, Miss Corinne Johnston, of this city, will sail by the Caronia, of the Cunard Line, for the shores of the Mediterranean and the south of Sicily and Egypt, but further than the spring have not formulated their plans, or decided whether they will remain abroad or return to Virginia for the summer.

The appearance of "The Goddess of Reason" on the stage is being watched with interest in New York, and the most favorable predictions have been made as to its success. It will run during the season in New York.

The Woman's Club.

On Monday evening at 8:30 o'clock Dr. T. Augustus Jaggar, until recently of Harvard University, but now of the Boston School of Technology, will lecture before the Woman's Club on "Earthquakes," the lecture to take place in the auditorium of the Jefferson Hotel, and to be illustrated by most interesting slides.

Dr. Jaggar has the reputation of being the finest geologist in America in order to give the ladies an opportunity.

Debutantes Entertained.

Wednesday evening, December 24, Mr. and Mrs. Langborne N. Williams, of No. 500 West Franklin Street, will give a dance in honor of Miss Susy McGuire, a niece of Mrs. Williams and a debutante of this season.

Miss McGuire will be at home Monday afternoon in compliment to Miss Elizabeth Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson Brown, of Bedford county.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hughes Lindsey, of No. 600 West Franklin Street, will give a cotillion Wednesday evening, December 9th, at the Jefferson Hotel, when Miss Eleanor Hazard Lindsey, their debutante daughter, will be introduced to society.
